An enriching Invited Lecture was organized by the Department of Pharmaceutics at the School of Pharmaceutical Education and Research on February 9th, 2024, as part of the Invited Lecture Series. The distinguished speaker for the occasion was Prof. Harish Dureja, Dean, Faculty of pharmaceutical sciences, M. D. University, Rohtak. We were privileged to have Prof. Dureja who accept our invitation and graciously share his expertise on the topic, "Design of Experiment in Pharmaceutical Research."

The lecture commenced with a warm welcome to Prof. Dureja, whose insightful presentation provided an overview of the Design of experiment in developing formulation and its impact. Prof. Dureja shares insight of the optimization of formulation, different approaches of design of experiment and their mathematical models. The audience was captivated by his elucidation of various models that play a pivotal role in the formulation development.

The event drew a significant audience, comprising faculty members from the school and a commendable number of research scholars from the Department of Pharmaceutics. The diversity in the audience not only added to the vibrancy of the session but also facilitated an active exchange of ideas and perspectives.

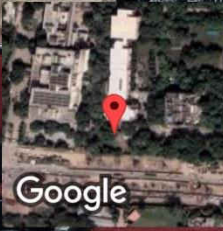

The session, characterized by its interactive nature, allowed attendees to pose questions and seek clarifications from Prof. Dureja. The ensuing discussion contributed to a deeper understanding of the subject matter, fostering a collaborative spirit among the participants.

The event concluded with a thought-provoking questionnaire, providing a platform for the audience to reflect on the lecture and seek further insights. In the spirit of capturing the essence of the lecture, a selection of clips from the event has been compiled. These clips serve as a visual recap, highlighting key moments and insights shared by Prof. Dr. Harish Dureja.
